This Intermediate level presentation is designed to help you:

1. Identify at least three medical problems related to bulimia nervosa, and how to manage them;
2. Explain at least three medical problems related to anorexia nervosa, and how to manage them.
3. Define at least three signs/symptoms that signal a need a higher level of care for ongoing management of medical problems.

Description:

The many serious medical complications associated with anorexia and bulimia can directly impact the ability to achieve an overall successful outcome. It is critical that eating disorder professionals familiarize themselves with how to treat the medical complications associated with anorexia nervosa and bulimia, regardless of duration or severity. Led by Dr. Philip S. Mehler, this presentation will address the medical complications of these disorders and the most effective treatment methods.

Philip S. Mehler, MD, CEDS, FACP, FAED is Executive Medical Director and Chief Medical Officer for Eating Recovery Center. Dr. Mehler is the designated head of medical services across Eating Recovery Center's full treatment spectrum, including Inpatient, Residential, Partial Hospitalization, Intensive Outpatient and Outpatient levels of care. He is the founder of ACUTE@Denver Health. Dr. Mehler has over 30 years of experience in the field of eating disorders and has lectured extensively on a national and international level as the leading medical expert on the topic of medical complications of eating disorders. Dr. Mehler is a noted administrator, researcher, author and leader in this field.
